2007. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. 250 Globalisation with a human face is a cliché that evokes hugely mixed responses. While the proponents argue its necessity and irreversibility in bringing global prosperity, the critics argue that it is an utterly commercial and profit seeking model with no trade of equitable development for humanity at large. The book analyses both views in detail by examining experiences of countries and regions. After exploring the challenges and opportunities for India and South Asia, it comprehensively looks at the prospect of a truly 'inclusive' Indian growth. The Indian Government's efforts towards this, in particular, are analysed in some detail. About The Author:- G.P. Isser, a former member of Indian Foreign Service (IFS) and former Ambassador of India, was engaged in Research in various aspects of Development Economics. During his diplomatic career, he served at various levels in Indian Missions abroad including Brussels. Colombo, Muscat, Rabat, Tokyo, Khartoum, etc. On the basis of his thesis on The Role of Trade in Economics Development, he was awarded a fellowship from the Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, New Delhi. His research work was also published under the same title. His last study and research work centered on the evolution of development thought and policy with special reference to poverty-alleviation in the development world. Recently, he had authored two books: Stages in Challenges for Development Economics; and Changing Face of Poverty and globalisation. Contents:- List of Annexures List of Tables Preface Acknowledgement Introduction Role of Trade in Development: Tracking the Theories and Experiences Till the 1990s Key Drivers of Globalization and Emerging New Forces in the Global Economy Globalization as a Catalyst of Economic Growth: Emerging Concerns and Challenges in the 21st Century Responding to Globalization: South Asia in the Global Economy and Prospects for its Rapid Integration Human Face...
