Not illustrated. 1858 Excerpt: .of the Britannica. crystal in different directions j1 the discovery of polarization by reflection is received with characteristic candour, as giving a temporary blow to the undulatory theory;2 whilst in a later paper the cause of chromatic polarization is convincingly deduced from the principle of interferences, and in the space of two lines the peculiar coloured laminte occurring in Iceland spar, which had been noticed by several experimenters, are accounted for. From about 1815 the optical discoveries of Young (470.) were so intimately connected with those of his younger f friend and rival Fresnel, that it seems best to defer fighdeour account of them until we consider (in 3 of this ferred to chapter) the peculiar researches of Fresnel, which 3. ultimately rendered the phenomena of polarization the most impregnable position of the partizans of the undulatory theory. The first great step was the conception of...
